Dakshina : Daniel Phoenix Singh Dance Company

Founded in 2003, Dakshina is a leading Washington DC-based dance company that offers artists and communities the unique opportunity to experience dance as a movement that links arts, cultures, and social causes. In recent years, it has examined the connections between Indian, social, and modern dance forms; celebrating tradition while constantly creating new vocabularies in movement and dance. The company combines arts with social causes by incorporating such themes into their work and through partnering with local communities. Dakshina was accorded with Dance Metro DC's Emerging Group Award in 2008. It received the prestigious Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation's Arts Connect Grant in 2011 and 2012.

Daniel Phoenix Singh is the Artistic Director and President of Dakshina. Working from a broad palette of styles such as Bharatanatyam, modern dance, and social dance forms, Daniel creates vibrant dances that mirror the communities that inspire him. Daniel weaves together the confluence of South Asian and Modern philosophies, aesthetics, and movement styles to create his signature hybridized work. Singh's works have been the critic's pick in Washington City Paper and The Washington Post. In 2007, Dance Metro DC recognized Singh with the Founder's Award for Innovation in Dance.
